Law Programme

The Law Programme at d'Overbroeck's is part of the wider 'Super-curricular' academic enrichment programme, a unique and specially developed programme to help Sixth Form students to explore their academic interests in greater depth alongside their regular studies.

Our academic enrichment activities equip students for their next steps in education or working life through a challenging and stimulating range of opportunities that students can select based on their ambitions. This particular enrichment programme is designed for students thinking of studying Law at University and those who will be applying to competitive higher education institutions. It starts in the Lower Sixth Form after the Christmas vacation.

An A-Level in Law is not required to study Law at University, and in fact, can give students too superficial an idea about the topics covered. Nor is a Law degree a pre-requisite for becoming a solicitor or barrister; there are alternative routes to professional qualification. A Law degree is nevertheless a popular and well-respected degree choice, albeit a competitive one requiring good to excellent A-Level grades, depending on university choice.

Programme contents

Law Plus

The programme includes 'Law Plus', a part of the school's 'Plus' programme, that allows students to explore legal topics and the requirements of the Law National Admissions Test (LNAT) which is required by most of the top Universities including Oxford and Cambridge. Students will:

- Attend 6 weekly meetings in each of the Easter and Summer terms
- Discuss and write LNAT style essays
- Discuss what a career in Law might look like
- Explore legal issues related to the Extended Project Qualification (EPQ) topics chosen by members of the group
